Pivot Cloud is an innovative software platform, designed and developed in Ireland. Just launched, Pivot Cloud enables businesses to map their old computer legacy systems and integrate them across their entire enterprise with no down time. Future IT development, incorporating intelligent automation, is also greatly facilitated by the software platform, resulting in significant cost and time savings for client companies.

The idea for the product came from the extensive experience of the co-founders in banking, insurance and office administration software. Over the years they continued to experience the same stumbling block for IT projects, which related to legacy systems. Such systems present particular problems in terms of maintenance and security. They have been extensively modified over the years and in many cases written in languages that are no longer supported by the original vendors.

With Pivot Cloud, IT executives can say goodbye to the headache associated with legacy systems. As a result of its implementation, IT projects across Departments from Sales & Marketing to Finance & Customer Services, which have been held up for months, if not years, can now proceed.

The technology behind Pivot Cloud has been validated and patented in Ireland. Initial customer trials are ongoing and are being very favourably received.
