

Ciara Garvan

WorkJuggle

Ciara Garvan is the Founder of WorkJuggle.com, an innovative, online platform connecting highly skilled professionals with flexible, remote and contract roles. WorkJuggle allows employers to scale up their organisations utilising the right skills at the right time.

Ciara originally has a background in technology and holds a Masters in Applied Computing from DIT (now TU Dublin). She has been a notable contributor to the Irish technology industry over the past fifteen years, holding senior roles in blue chip companies, such as Accenture, Meteor and Symantec. She is a regular contributor to Irish Tech News often writing about the Future of Work and emerging workplace and technology trends.

Ciara was previously Chair of Dyspraxia/ DCD Ireland and has a passion for Diversity & Inclusion. WorkJuggle has worked with many high-profile Irish companies on their Diversity & Inclusion strategy and trained entire organisations on Unconscious Bias.

WorkJuggle was founded in 2016 at Ciara's kitchen table whilst she was at home with three small children. Since then, Ciara has taken the business, which was named as one of Silicon Republic's top Irish Start-ups 2018, from strength to strength.

www.WorkJuggle.com

