

Tina O'Dwyer

The Tourism Space

Tina O'Dwyer is a certified professional coach, facilitator and trainer. In 2007, after many years of visiting, she adopted north west Clare as her home and found herself living in one of Ireland's most popular tourism destinations. Returning to the workplace after extended maternity leave, Tina 'fell into' a tourism role and worked for the next ten years with a multi award-winning sustainable tourism initiative in the Burren and Cliffs of Moher Geopark.

Over this time, Tina observed the need to support ambitious and progressive entrepreneurs and business leaders in tourism, as they sought to lead their business and teams in a challenging and rapidly changing external environment. This led her to establish The Tourism Space in 2018 to offer a number of platforms for professional development and business acceleration to the industry. These included one-to-one premium coaching, group coaching, online training, a national conference and regional mastermind seminars.

Covid-19 has radically changed the tourism industry. In response, the business pivoted and The Tourism Space now offers an online Tourism Business School and also facilitates an online Tourism Business Network, connecting tourism entrepreneurs worldwide.

The Tourism Space is Business All-Star accredited and Tina herself received All Star recognition for Thought Leadership in High Performance Tourism in 2019. The Business was also recognized by the Clare Business Excellence Awards in 2020, claiming the Best Micro Business Award.
