The Expert Witness Site

Eavanna FitzGerald is a barrister with 20 years of experience practicing at The Bar of Ireland. In the course of her practice, she saw first-hand the problems that legal teams experienced when trying to source expert witnesses. She set up The Expert Witness Site to solve those problems.

The Expert Witness Site is now run by a team of barristers with over 60 years of expertise between them. They source the highest quality expert witnesses for legal teams, from an extensive database that they have built. The Expert Witness Site contacts the appropriate experts, collects their availability and quotes, and provides solicitors with options. This is the first service of its kind and provides an invaluable layer of independence to the process of instructing an expert. Solicitors can opt for a one-time service or an annual subscription.

The Expert Witness Site also runs training sessions for expert witnesses, ensuring that they are fully equipped for their role. This covers matters such as the court rules, the duties and responsibilities of expert witnesses, and the latest case-law.

In its first year of business, The Expert Witness Site has worked with many of the leading legal and consultancy firms in Ireland, as well as top insurance companies and government agencies. They have provided training to a broad range of both national and international expert witnesses. They are now working towards establishing a membership system for expert witnesses, providing them with opportunities for work and networking, as well as professional support.

The Expert Witness Site has been announced as a finalist in the service provider to the legal industry category at the Leap Law Awards 2025.
